In those modern days, preachers and politicians, of a certain stripe, have become as thick together as pick-pockets-in fact a political meeting, composed of the friends of freedom, fusion, and first rate whiskey, is no longer considered complete without a liberal sprinkling of the cloth, and it is seldom that one brother shall wall his eyes heavenward and put up a the case, and as an offset to the heathenism and hypocracy which may immediately follow. Preachers, too, are sometimes found mingling pretty freely in the discussions which take place at these political assemblages, and otherwise manifesting a zeal in pot-house of progress, such as it is. At the recent Republican us for publication. It is as follows:

REVIEW OF THE WILMINGTON MARKET,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING MARCH 27TH, 1856.

TURPENTINE- The receipts of this article since our review of Thursday last, have been light and confined mostly to mall parcels. The market ruled firm with a fair demand from distillers up to the close of Tuesday; but on Wednesday prices gave way 4@5 cents, with sales at $1 84 for virgin, $2 30 for yellow dip and $1 30 for hard, $2 280 lbs. No
